

Bleiberg-Maribor Massacres

never surrender to Tito's Partisans. They also realized that, by remaining more or less non-committal about accepting a Croatian surrender, the Croatians would nevertheless evacuate Yugoslavia in hopes of, at least, contacting the British military authorities in Austria, and as the certain lesser of two evils. Accordingly, and in line with this reasoning, the Croatian army headed for the Austrian border where it did get in touch with the British. After the evacuation of Zagreb on May 6 and 7, 1945, they were followed by hordes of civilian refugees whose presence swelled the mass exodus to 500,000 military personnel and civilians. Meanwhile, Tito butchered the civilians in Zagreb who had elected to remain. Then, on May 15, 1945, ten days after the end of World War II in the ETO, these people crossed the Austro-Yugoslavian border, at the invitation of the British military authorities, and encamped near the town of Bleiberg on Austrian soil. There, the British disarmed over 100,000 Croatian soldiers, while in the meantime Tito's partisans slipped up to the border under the cover of darkness and deployed themselves to effectuate an ambush.

Just as soon as the British had disarmed the Croatian troops, they herded the refugees back across the Yugoslavian border and towards the line of ambush. There, over 150,000 Croatian men, women and children were ruthlessly butchered by Tito's lurking Partisans. Elsewhere on Austrian territory, it was the same. After having reached Austrian territory and having surrendered to the British military authorities, the Croatian refugees were disarmed and then shipped back to Yugoslavia in boxcars and military conveyances. In this manner, hundreds of thousands of Croatians were slaughtered on the spot of arrival. In each case, the British had sworn to these unfortunates that they were being transported to Italy for internment for the duration.

Later, to wipe out incriminating evidence of "Operation Slaughterhouse," Tito ordered the terrain, where the massacres occurred and where the victims were buried, to be dynamited. Later what was once Croatia, became a charnel house. Marshal Tito's lust for blood was not sated until after he had liquidated all Croatian anti-Bolshevik elements within Yugoslavia. Today, these murders have come back to haunt him, as recently reported in the Anglo-American press, over the radio, and on TV.

The evidence is irrefutable. In helping to synchronize mass murder with Tito's Partisans, the British military authorities stationed in Austria violated the Geneva Convention, as well as the entire concept of the Nuremberg Trials. However, they could NOT have cooperated with Tito to effectuate the Bleiberg-Maribor Massacres unless they had prior approval and clearance from SHAEF. General Eisenhower's command, in turn, could NOT have approved the British action unless it had the prior approval and clearance of London and Washington. Evidently, the entire chain of military command got this prior approval and clearance. Consequently, the British and American governments are jointly responsible for what happened to the Croatians at Bleiberg, Maribor, Kocevski Rog, and elsewhere in Yugoslavia. That the London-Washington axis has supported Marshal Tito ever since 1942 and has subsidized his regime ever since the end of World War II, despite his (Tito's) alliance with the Kremlin, is further proof of collusion and culpability. It is also further proof that the allegedly "anti-Communist" policies followed by the Anglo-American coalition in justification of their respective international postures can NOT be relied upon as being bona-fide.

The victims of the Bleiberg-Maribor Massacres may yet come back to haunt London and Washington, just as they are haunting Marshal Tito right now!

THE POWER GAME

By KEN HOOP

Few people listened when Francis Parker Yockey in "World in Flames" outlined the basic structure of the entity now in control of America, and the great destruction this entity would bring to America, if it were not removed. Sceptics, including many "anti-Semites" scowled and Yockey, as Spengler, was called a pessimist.

But now, can any sincere student of world events doubt that the money-power, Anglo-Yiddish combine or Zionist regime, as it is here interchangeably called, has embarked upon a suicidal foreign policy which will culminate in the destruction of America? Yockey pointed out that the split personality of the Jews drives them to destroy America, while at the same time weakly attempting to preserve it. Yockey concludes thusly: "If a commander of a fortress sympathizes with the enemy, but yet insists in defending the fortress rather than surrendering it, he has surely found the highest formula of destruction."

With this in mind let now the reader ponder the latest announcement out of Nationalist China. The statement, carried in Formosan papers said among other things, that the Nationalist Chinese entity could be forced to align itself much more closely with the Soviet Union, because of the American-Peking relationship.

The power game in progress today is not the mythical monolithic communist conspiracy that Birchers rant about. It is not a contest between two economic systems, capitalism and communism. The important powers in the battle today are two in number. They are different in structure and yet similar in aim. The two powers are the Russians and the Zionists. The Zionists are not the true Americans but today they control the boundaries of the geographical area known as the United States, and the mass of unsuspecting Americans are cannon fodder for the Zionists. (Think of the great number of innocent American white youth that lost their lives in Vietnam in the last few years.)

The Zionists may cry "capitalism, freedom, free enterprise." The Russians may cry "communism." The two sides may talk a good game of ideological-economic loyalty, but in fact they are playing nothing more nor less than history's ancient pastime — the Power Game. The suicidal Zionists may drive Formosa into the hands of the Russians if this is deemed necessary in their eyes.

In other words, the great "enemy" of the Nationalist Chinese may suddenly become an ally, in a very short time indeed, and to hell with political ideology disputes.

More than thirty years ago the Jewish entity in control of America drove Chiang Kai-Shek from the mainland of China. Now years later the suicidal Jews may choose to put the finishing touches on their insane China policy, by driving the last of their would-be victims into the hands of the Russians. This might be a better set-up for the Nationalist Chinese, anyway. One thing is certain — it could not be worse than it is today.

The announcement by the Nationalist Chinese representative will bring much fear among professional anti-communists. They will cry: "It is happening, Formosa is going Communist."

To be truthful about it, the closest country to a "communist" one today is — none other than America. Formosa will not go Communist. It may go "Russian."

May God save us from Jewish capitalists and communists who create such confusion in the world today.

LIBERALISM

By RUDY SIMPSON

Liberalism is permissiveness. Liberalism is coddling criminals, reducing or eliminating punishment for crime and contributing to its increase. Liberalism is more and more experimentation with drugs. Liberalism is license to offend in any way gratifying to the offender. Liberalism is lots of hair on the head and face and dirt all over, public nakedness and/or weird costumes for exhibitionism. Liberalism is desecrating and defiling the flag. Liberalism is assaulting the fundamentals of Christianity. Liberalism is ridiculing tradition and heritage and ignoring, denying or rewriting history. Liberalism is turning science into politics. Liberalism is imposing on all via a politicized judiciary a loose and open social order. Liberalism is race-mixing by force. Liberalism is perverting Christ to unwashed love, love, love. Liberalism is sexual promiscuity and exciting children to sexuality. Liberalism is deceiving oneself and others. Liberalism is cynical profiteering. Liberalism is international gangsterism.

Liberalism is launching interminable, winless warfare and after a protracted period pretending doveship by launching anti-war violence while preparing to launch another interminable, winless war. Liberalism is turmoil for purposes of plunder. Liberalism is the glamorization and commercialization of the ugly, the mediocre, the nondescript, the common-place, the shallow, the unproven, the unrecognizable and the profane, with corresponding suppression or de-emphasis of the beautiful, the important, the superior, the profound, the proven, the recognizable and the sacred.

Liberalism is the inability or vain refusal to admit error or wrong-doing. Liberalism is hypocrisy. Liberalism is pseudo-intellectualism. Liberalism is indoctrination at the expense of education. Liberalism is controlling the communication and entertainment media. Liberalism is iconoclasm. Liberalism is nihilism. Liberalism is subversion. Liberalism is bankrupting a nation, one's own. Liberalism is welfarism. Liberalism is socialism. Liberalism is suicide!
